

Seeking Southwest Regional Director

About The Veritas Forum

The Veritas Forum is a fast-growing, strategic ministry that is partnering with Christian professors and student fellowships to restore the intellectual credibility of Christianity in the public sphere. Veritas Forums are high-profile university events which engage students and faculty from a range of worldviews in discussions about life's hardest questions and the relevance of Jesus Christ. The Veritas Forum also publishes thought-provoking content for broader audiences and provides a unique platform for leading Christian academics and innovators to become public intellectuals. The first Veritas Forum took place at Harvard in 1992, and now nearly 100 universities across the United States, Canada, and Europe are hosting annual Forums. We have also extended our impact through publishing and web-based media. Visit us on the web at www.veritas.org.

Description

As Southwest Regional Director, the successful candidate will join a high-caliber team of staff working to plant and develop Veritas Forums in different regions across the country. Responsibilities include casting vision to campus ministers, students, and faculty at some of the most strategic schools in the country, coaching teams through the process of planning and executing Veritas Forums, and working with teams to leverage the Veritas platform in creative ways to support their year round mission.

Qualifications

An ideal applicant would have at least three years of work experience or graduate studies post college and a demonstrated track record of significant achievement and leadership within their professional and/or academic career. He or she should be a great problem solver, able to adapt to the different needs of each campus, and gifted at building coalitions between multiple stakeholders and around a common vision for university impact. Regional Directors are also required to be highly detail-oriented and capable of project-managing multiple teams in the execution of high-quality, university events. In terms of work style, the candidate would need to be a self-starter, capable of working independently, but also able to collaborate effectively with a team.

Strong personal motivation to invest in the vision of The Veritas Forum is highly valued, so candidates must be mature and growing Christians, with an understanding of campus ministry, a passion for connecting the big questions of life with the person and story of Christ, and a grasp of the strategic role of the university and its ideas in our culture.

Hours and Compensation

This role is envisioned as a part-time, paid position with hours falling within the range of 15-25 hours/week during the fall and spring semesters, though for candidates who meet other organizational needs we can consider a full-time position. Additional hours in school vacation times are possible, but not guaranteed. Most elements of the schedule are flexible and workspace options will depend on location and individual needs. Some travel is required to universities within the region (all expenses covered). Pay will be commensurate with experience. Candidates living near a major university in Texas, with preference for the Houston area, are encouraged to apply. Start date is negotiable, but would ideally fall between December 1, 2014 and March 1, 2015. Interested persons should submit a cover letter and resume to [jobs\[at\]veritas.org](mailto:jobs[at]veritas.org).
